This has been an extraordinary year for the College of Science and Technology and Temple University. Based on Google Scholar, Temple is now ranked 18th in the country for scholarly citations, ahead of institutions like Princeton University (19), New York University (25) and the University of Pennsylvania (44). Temple also reached the top research tier of the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education. CST plays a major role in Temple’s rise to research excellence, with four of our faculty having authored five of the top-100 most-cited research papers of all time.

CST’s excellence in the laboratory is matched by our commitment to undergraduate education. Students work directly with senior faculty, and we offer supportive academic advising and professional development to prepare them for successful careers. By investing in the college, CST donors have helped build an extraordinary learning environment. Thanks in part to donor support, we introduced the Undergraduate Research Program, where students work directly with world-class researchers, and the Science Scholars Program, offering additional academic supports for top students.

CST donors are now establishing ‘top-up’ funds to boost the amount of financial support we provide to attract the best doctoral students. By working together, CST and its supporters have given our students a distinctive edge in a very competitive job market and in admission to graduate or professional school.

We still have challenges ahead. Over the past several years we have hired top researchers, such as John Perdew and Sudhir Kumar. To continue to attract and retain top faculty, CST needs additional financial resources to support advanced research and to create endowed term professorships. I hope that you will choose to partner with us and support this and other crucial initiatives, as those listed in this Honor Roll of Donors have last year.

Board of Visitors member Seda Tarzian, (BA ’48, Bio) is the most recent donor to establish a fund that honors a former faculty member and supports today’s professors and students.

Tarzian, a female pioneer in pharmaceuticals, endowed the William T. Caldwell Memorial Distinguished Teaching Award. The annual award recognizes a faculty member who demonstrates teaching excellence. Impressed by the dedication of her Temple faculty, Tarzian’s gift honors Dean Caldwell, long-time professor and college dean from 1942 to 1961.

Other CST donors have established funds honoring the legacies of Mark Nathanson, inspiring biology professor; Daniel Swern, professor who discovered the Swern oxidation reaction; Hazel Tomlinson, chemistry faculty legend; and Gene Ulmer, EES professor known for his commitment to students. The funds support, respectively, an award for academic excellence, graduate fellowships, faculty endowment and geology field camp. To learn how you can honor a CST professor, contact John Walker, Associate Dean, at jrwalker@temple.edu or 215-204-8176.

The College of Science and Technology extends its deep appreciation to the alumni, friends, faculty, staff, parents, students, corporations and foundations that made generous contributions between July 1, 2015 and June 30, 2016. Their generosity means CST can continue to set new standards in research, teaching and engagement with the world.

First-Ever Faculty and Staff Campaign a Success
CST embarked on its first comprehensive college faculty and staff giving campaign in fiscal year 2016. Led by Joseph Allegra (BA ’70, Bio), chair of the CST Board of Visitors, the campaign attracted gifts totaling $65,000. Among the funds college faculty and staff chose to support are undergraduate research and endowed professorships as well as funds that honor Dr. Ralph Jenkins, long-time senior associate dean, and Dr. Gene Ulmer, Department of Earth & Environmental Science, who both passed away in 2015. The following faculty and staff, from both CST and Temple University, generously made contributions in fiscal year 2016 to support the college.

CST SUPPORTERS HELP TOAST RUSSELL CONWELL

The university hosted its second Temple Toast on February 15, 2016, a celebration of Temple founder and first president Russell H. Conwell. Celebrating Dr. Conwell's birthday, the day's events—on campus and online—encouraged giving to the annual fund at each Temple school and college. More than 130 individuals made contributions to the college that day, giving CST the fourth highest total of any Temple school or college. CST also had the highest total during one of the hourly challenges, earning the college an additional $5,000 toward its annual fund, which supports students, faculty and research. The following individuals made a gift to CST during Temple Toast.

DONORS USE OWLCROWD TOOL TO SUPPORT STUDENTS

CST successfully hosted three OwlCrowd campaigns during fiscal year 2016. The campaigns focused on helping students in the Department of Computer & Information Sciences attend the Grace Hopper Celebration of Women in Computing Conference in Houston; providing support for geology students embarking on their summer field camp experience; an essential part of their education; and providing funds for members of the Temple University Chemical Society to take part in the 2015 American Chemical Society National Meeting. Each campaign surpassed its goal, with CST supporters contributing more than $11,000 toward all three initiatives.
SYMPOSIUM HONORS MEMORY OF PROFESSOR GRANT KROW

More than 80 alumni, researchers, professors and students gathered for the Dr. Grant R. Krow Symposium to honor the memory and career of the long-time chemistry professor who died last year at the age of 73.

Sponsored by the Department of Chemistry and CST, the symposium featured remarks and presentations by professors from Temple, Yale University, the University of Wisconsin-Madison and Penn State-Abington. A professor of organic chemistry at Temple for 42 years, Krow taught and mentored hundreds of students, authored more than 110 scientific papers and won numerous awards.

Prior to the symposium, Seth Herzon (BS ’02, Chem), a former student of Krow’s who earned his PhD from Harvard University in 2006 and has been a professor of chemistry at Yale University since 2008, spoke about how influential Krow was in his eventual career path. “I spent hours in his office discussing material I had questions about,” Herzon says. “That availability, which was really kind of special, coupled with his intellectual capabilities, which were outstanding, made him a very effective and influential mentor.”
